for MacOS, though, it's definitely easier to set up a shortcut to run it from the terminal. Run `xattr -l /path/to/file` and take a look at the `attr.xml` file. You can find this in the file at `/var/db/receipts/yourapp/attributes/current/` in the root of the app bundle. Digital Colleges and Schools to Get $2 Billion in Stimulus Funds to Help Cover Up to 43% of Teacher Pay Brad Loveless says that digital colleges should be treated like colleges so students can get the same grants that come with being a student in a college. But many parents and students don't realize that you can't get grants for digital colleges. Brad Loveless says the problem is people look at digital colleges, like Brightworkz, as job training and teacher programs. Brad Loveless: Which is kind of like, here's the thing, you can't get grants for teacher training. And that's kind of the confusion that people often have with digital schools. But the Department of Education is giving $2 billion to digital colleges and schools to teach students. Teachers should get about $1,300, students about $600, and the rest of the money goes to cover overhead. So, Brightworkz will get about $50 million of the grant. But students can get $600 for every semester they attend. Brad Loveless says for Brightworkz that would be about $25,000. Brad Loveless: Which is a little bit of a price to pay to get the kind of training that a college would give you. His company lost a little bit of money this year. But he says new online schools have been showing little need for traditional college-level courses. And he says it's because students can learn everything on their laptops. Brad Loveless: Because courses like physics or statistics that you would have to buy a book for. You can get online for free. Brad Loveless: Where you can have these classes that you would have to purchase, like books. And make sure that you're going to get the grades that you want. And he says it's not just a problem for new schools. Brad Loveless: It
