Commentaires Yes, I am an elitist, but not for the reason you think :p I was looking for ways to distract myself after mourning and being bored of the island for about two months... I live in the US, and I've been watching the news about the COVID-19, knowing that we could be facing the same problem. I tried to find an image of this island, and I thought this would be a good place to escape to if anything happened. I've been here since the end of October, with my girlfriend. I also want to say that I found the island quite pleasant, but after 2 months of continuous rain, it was starting to feel rather claustrophobic, and I was considering the possibility of returning to Japan. However, I feel that these 5 days have been a bit of a holiday. I managed to read all the books from the library, and while I've been reading, I also managed to learn a bit about the island. I'm not a scholar, but I have a university diploma and I can read and write in English, so I can understand a bit of what's written here. I'm not sure if this is the first time I've come across something like this, but I feel like the people who live here are very welcoming and friendly. They have a lot of nice people and are very helpful. I've met a few of them and I can really recommend living in here, it's a very pleasant place to be. I've been in these blogs before, but this is my first time posting a comment. I know that they don't like long comments, but I want to say a few things. First of all, I don't want to appear ungrateful. My daughter is studying here, and I'm glad I could take some time out of 2d92ce491b
